Woburn Recreation Travel Basketball

Commitment & Understanding Agreement

Being selected to play in the WRTB should be considered an honor, parents another player from being selected for this team and comes with an implied level of commitment. Both player and parent should be aware that by accepting placement on the travel team, the commitment will include attendance at practices and games, as determined by each team's coach. This commitment also includes an agreement by each player to conduct themselves in a proper manner in regards to respect and sportsmanship to all coaches, players, referees, parents, and spectators at all times while representing WRTB.

WRTB encourages its players to participate in other outside activities, but in fairness to all programs, the commitment requirements for the travel program should be considered before choosing to participate, as only as compelling reasons will be considered by the coach for not meeting the requirements. Compelling excuses for not meeting the requirement are defined as situations, by their nature are beyond the players control, i.e. family obligations, school activities, religious functions, etc. the coach should be informed of these conflicts as early as possible. If there is a failure to meet the minimum requirements, the player may suffer a loss of playing time, a suspension and or expulsion from the team.

Players must attend one of the two travel tryouts in order to be considered for selection to a travel basketball team
